U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services' regulations require that U.S. universities certify that admitted international students have sufficient funding to pursue a full course of study. In compliance with this regulation, the University of South Carolina requires international applicants to present documentation of financial resources adequate to cover all of their expenses at the University for one academic year.

This form has been developed for the purpose of financial certification at the University of South Carolina only. The U.S. Embassy or Consulate in the student's home country may accept this form as adequate financial certification, and/or may request other documentation.
